COMMENT OF THE DAY

HAT Britain is in the process of important effect on the plans now being evolved for the defence of Western Europe. Up to the present the free world has relied on the United States to provide supplies of this weapon, and while it is not suggested that Britain could compete with "American production (even if it were desirable) it is a matter of high importance that in the future she will be able to make contributions to atom bomb stockpiles. And there is quiet satisfaction to be gained, from the fact that British scientists have finally overcome the obstacles which prevented an earlier production of the atom bomb. Our scientists undoubtedly materially assisted in the initial work which led to the United States making the first atom bomb in history, although its most vital secret has eluded them until recently. The latest announcement by the Ministry of Supply also vindicates Mr Attlee's repeated declarations in the House of Commons that successful developments were going on. But while it is satisfactory to know that Britain now possesses the necessary knowledge to produce an explosive atom bomb, large scale production is out of the question

She cannot hope to operate on the same level of the American projects, which arencosting a billion dollars a year, employing up to 100,000 people, and occupying thousands or square miles in the United States. It is reasonable to argue that an authority fight outside consequences in accelerating research and introducing a new precision of has good reason to be proud of her work in this field of atomic development, and whatever the military successes of the Department of Atomic Energy, it is industrially vital that this work, experimental as well as productive, for penceful uses should continue. The use of nuclear fission as a general source of power may still be far off, but when it comes the reward of success will be great and the penalties of slowness may be heavy. For this reason it is necessary there should be set a desirable degree of immediacy, not only of atomic production for war, but of peaceful

London, Aug. 2. A High Court writ has provented the motor yacht La Contenta leaving London to take 20 people to the South China seas to seek a £100,000 treasure reputed to have been buried 250 years ago by Captain Kidd, a notorious British pirate.

The writ alleged a breach of the charter arreement.

While. La Contenta was today tied up in the calm waters of the River the craanisers planned to acquire another yacht, in which they hope to leave in a month's time.

The treasure hunters have maps which, they believe, show the location of the treasure. The maps are said to have been found in a secret drawer of Captain Kidd's sea

Kuwait Oil Up Production One-Third

The Kuwast Oil Company in the Persian Gulf. has stepped up oil production by about one-third over last year's record, it was announced today. The announcement by the Anglo-American-owned Kuwait Oil Company coincided with the closing down. of the refinery in Abadan in Iran.

The Kuwait Oll Company is considered one of the richest ouareas in the world.

It now produces at an annual rate of over 20,000,000 tons and experts believe that the output could be substantially raised. The company is owned in equal shares by the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company' and the American Gulf Oil Corporation. Its refining capacity reaches 25,000 barrels a day. The reserves of the area are estimated at 7,000,-000,000 barrels.

Why we say Holding the Baby.

In the country parts of Britain they used to have a pretty custom of dressing up the last sheaf or two of their wheat harvest to look like a baby. This "baby" would then be carried round to farmer who hadn't finished his harvest and he'd make haste to pass the "baby" on. The last farmer found "holding the baby" was made to provide the harvest-sup-

Paint, although a relatively small part of the industries which list themselves under 'Chemicals' and chemical products' comprising a multitudinous array of commodities such as glue, gelatine, joss sticks, fertilisers and firecrackers, is nevertheless one of the most important where the colony's own needs and trading are concerned. This has been so for sometime.

Only one of the five paint factories which exist was built after the war—the Kin Kwok Lacquer Company, which is the smallest. Oldest of all is the China Paint Company, built in 1928 but there are newer and better equipped factories, among them being Duro, built first in 1939. Duro recently combined with the Orient Paint Company and is now housed as one concern in brand new buildings on the grounds of the Taikoo Sugar Refinery, where it is equipped partly with 1939 British and American machinery, some of which is the most up to date in.
